A YEAR BOOK PUBLISHED

BY THE SENIOR CLASS

OF

CONVERSE COLLEGE

SPARTANBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

Dedicated to

Our Mothers

Foreword

WE were sad, at first, to leave our dolls and our toys and to grow beyond the days of make-believe. But now they are only happy memories and thinking of them brings to us pleasure and no regret. So may it be with our college life. May this book remind us of it as Mother Goose reminds us of our childhood, and in later years as we live lives even richer and fuller may we look back on our days at Converse with only pleasure in remembering their bounty of happiness, loyalty, and never-ending friendships.

Class Poem

The day is come.
The warm, dark wings of night
Soar up to greet the crimson dawn.
All fears for morrow now are gone.
We watch the new-born flame
Of life, of hope, of light,
Which routs all darkness from its path
And envelopes in the warmest wrath
The things too craven to withstand its glare.

Eagerly we come to claim
The heritage of many hours.
Avidly we clasp
The golden promise which is ours.
With youth's unbound desire,
Our triumphing hearts and minds have rent
The future shadows.
We have our dreams, projects, and schemes
For which we strive
Cauterized in young heart's fire;
Our hopes are glowing and alive.
Expectantly we face the dawn
Of life without these walls
No doubts, no fears can mar;
No shadow falls
To bring us care or bar the way.
The day is come.

—Mary Shields, Poet

Class History

AS INDEED the philosopher has observed, all things must have a beginning. Able and conscientious men have labored long and diligently to determine the beginnings of things—of trees, of birds, of policies of nations. By labor, of whose length and diligence you are free to speculate, we have determined that the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-two had its beginnings somewhere in some city or town or hamlet when some certain person was born. Beyond this we have not been able to go.

To you, college might not be a land of great adventure even in the rosy afterglow of dimming memory. To us, it was a land of great adventure—a land of raging rivers, unknown crags, and yawning canyons. A land of high blue mountains and smiling distant plains—almost another world.

When Thirty-two is the Freshman Class, we drop our anchor in old Cudd Memorial. Twelve months more and we are the Sophomore Class. Wiser, of course; more foolish, certainly. Twelve months more and we are the Junior Class. New responsibilities follow each other with bewildering rapidity—Little Sisters, Major and Minor teachers, Junior-Freshman Wedding, Junior breakfast, Junior-Senior.

One more year and then the end. The ship for the great adventure has stopped at three ports each a little farther than the last from the port of first departure; each more difficult of access. The way has been long and treacherous. Treacherous shoals there have been and jagged rocks that lurked just below the placid waves. Illimitable calms when the spirit of great adventure dragged and the ship and her crew hung limp and listless—waiting, waiting. Three ports—the course of adventure has been high—too high for some. They have left the ship for this and for that; some even to bow at the altar of Hyman. But the story of the ship and her gallant company has gone far and near. Others have heard the call and signed on. Three ports and the gallant adventurers ride high to breast the coming waves.

September, nineteen hundred and thirty-one. We are really the Senior Class. We are nearing the end of the great adventure. December has come and the last holidays, January and the last mid-terms, May and the last finals, Junior-Senior, Commencement—Our Commencement. Can it be true? It is true. It is the end of the great adventure.

Four ports on the great adventure and our good ship breasts the breeze. Four ports, the last port behind us; the wide, unbroken sea before. The last port but the call of greater adventures beckons. Beckons on and on, ever onward. The wind is fair astern. The sails are rising higher and higher. With our eyes straight forward, straining for the distant peaks, we are answering the call of greater adventures. Where that call will lead we do not know. It has called us out in the pathless sea of life—and we go.

Class Prophecy

THE Fall of 1942 found me bound for the scientific exposition in New York. My desire in going was to find out the fates of the girls of '32.

Luck favored me when into my Pullman walked Mary Harvin, Agnes MacArthur, and Marshall Richbourg. We were delighted to see each other and naturally fell to talking over the last ten years. Agnes was stage manager for Ziegfeld Follies. Mary, who had been married, was returning from a visit to Tootsie Graham and Emily Grant, both married. Mary had heard Amelia Bruns and Ruth Kimbrough on their Southern tour. Mary had visited Myra Faust's school in which Nancy Cooper, Elizabeth Hemphill, Margaret Lesesne, Helen Smith, and Beatrice Lee were teachers.

Marshall, the wife of a naval officer, declared she returned to Converse Commencement last year. She was entertained by May Mauldin, the wife of the History professor, Sara Hobbs, head of the Conservatory, and Ethel Hunter, author of Hunter's Latin Text. Helen McColl, Dean of the Faculty, and Esther LaBruce, wife of a pianist, were back.

In Spartanburg were Nita Turner, Lily Mae Thomas, and Josephine Hair, English teachers, and Sara Hudgens, Fire Chief; Ruth Keller and Ella Gaines Wardlaw, happy wives; Eleanor Ward, newspaper editor. The resort of students was a roadhouse run by Elizabeth Leonard and Ruby Abernathy, where Boo Bitzer and Ada Lancaster did their famous toe-dancing act.

In New York, Jean Culvern and her husband met me. Jean was entertaining Annetta MacLean, Jane Sikes—back from California, where they were sorority chaperones—and Dot Gardner, an interior decorator. Fannie Louise Vermont dropped in. She was the wife of an archeologist and would join him soon. She said Velma Poteat and Samantha Chapman were doing chemical work and that Sadie Garber was teaching music.

The next morning, I visited Edna Blake's Beauty Salon where I learned that Helen Allen had married an aviator and flew around the world getting material for her new novel. June Koontz had married. Betty Branch and Mary Lou Kirby were radio performers. As I was leaving, Volina Cline came in. She was the wife of a philanthropist and did social service work assisted by Harriet Cogswell and Helen Es'Dorn.

Next, I visited a Dress Shoppe owned by "Lib" Parrott. At present she was in Europe with her husband and her buyer, Dot Jones. Meldred Still and Mary Stuart Wingo, models, showed me around. Meldred told me that Mary Shields was editing a magazine and that "Dibba" Geer was married to a foreign prince.

Music announced the approach of the exposition parade. The mob was welcoming back the husbands of "Lib" Blizzard and "Kat" Carter, who had flown to Mars.

Next, I decided to see Ethel Dickerson's latest picture. Fate favored me again. Pathe News showed Lollie Jones off to Spain with her ambassador husband; the Trawick twins making their debut in the senate; Isobel Sims and Louise Pearman interviewing Perrin Cudd and Eloise DuPre, criminal lawyers.

My discoveries were brought to a close with the news that Orene Richardson was a missionary to China; Ruth Sigman, married; and Mary Louise Penland, Janie Louise Mayes, Mary Jane Garnett, Mary Landis, and Carolyn Arnold, secretaries.

I left New York happy in the knowledge that the Class of '32 was making its mark in all parts of the world.

CORRIE WATSON, Prophet.

Class Will

WE, the Class of 1932, being fairly sane after our peregrinations through four years of college life or what have you, do hereby make our last will and testament, since we feel that there are in our possession certain articles, real and intangible, which may be of some value to those who come after us. To the heirs of our worldly goods, we wish to urge appreciation of our donations; in this year of depression it's hard enough for us to give anything, so please be satisfied with what you get.

The Voice is speaking!

First. We leave to the "rah! rah!" girls of Converse what few remnants of class spirit we ever possessed, including our one claim to vivacity—our loud cheers when we were winning in athletic encounters.

Second. To the Junior Class we hand over our robes and what few privileges we have managed to have during this our Senior year.

Third. We leave our shows, "Purple Towers" and "Up in the Air"—including the Aviator chorus and our roster of would-be Metropolitan stars—to the Sophomores. May their heroes sound manlier than our gentlemen (?) did.

Fourth. To the Freshmen we leave our nonchalance (with or without Murads). When you've said the wrong thing at the wrong time to the wrong people, be nonchalant and do what we did!

Fifth. We leave our skill in the culinary art, secured from innumerable spasms with Junior breakfasts, to all those lasses in school who, according to Mr. Townley's vocation tests, will find their life work in somebody's kitchen. (Remember: Cold water takes scrambled egg off a plate much quicker than hot, and for economy's sake it is much better to "water" orange juice.)

Sixth. We leave the persuasive powers of Corrie Watson to Miss Gee. Corrie also leaves behind a treatise on evolution—correct in every detail.

Seventh. The B.Mus.'s of our number a few moist tears at the thought of departing, and as they go they will their great love for Mr. Hyatt to the 1933 crop of Hyatt-worshippers. May they acquire the one-track minds that their predecessors had.

Eighth. Our class song-bird (not Harriet Cogswell), Mutt Bruns, leaves behind a record of her voice singing "Je Suis Titania", to be played in the West Main showers three times every day.

Ninth. To the male population of Spartanburg, and of Wofford in particular, we bequeath what few shekels we have in the class coffers, making the request that they use the aforementioned money to buy themselves new tux to replace those so generously handed over by them to us for cotillions, weddings, plays, and other functions at which "gentlemen" are needed.

Tenth. In a burst of generosity, Council hands over to next year's Council all the shelved bridge petitions, anonymous letters, etc., which have come into their possession. They make very interesting reading matter.

Eleventh. To show that 1932 is not lacking for brawn, Ruth Sigman and Helen McColl step forward and hand over their block letters, stars, crescents, etc., to those eager souls who are struggling for C's.

Twelfth. To prove that we are not all Lizzie Zilch's, we leave Jean Culvern's eyes, Mary Stuart Wingo's grace, Marshall Richbourg's coloring, Dot Gardner's hair, Dot Jones's' daintiness, and Elizabeth Parrott's dignity to next year's May Queen.

Thirteenth. Helen Es'Dorn, after tearing her hair and losing what little weight she has accumulated during her sojourn within the walls of Converse, wills a nice, hard, brick-bat to that simple-minded person who had the audacity to say, "Being head of May Day must be such fun, for then you get to know who the May Queen is."

Fourteenth. Our popular members—in other words, the Grand Order of Step-Sitters, headed by such confirmed addicts as Esther LaBruce and Elizabeth Blizzard, have agreed to pool their resources and give them to any under-classmen who have never had the unique experience of having a Wofford date.

Fifteenth. The Ethics class, feeling that Dr. Morgan should be amused, have purchased an unbreakable ruler, guaranteed to balance on any nose. It is hoped this will be appreciated by Dr. Morgan.

Sixteenth. The Clark Gable admirers (and they are legion) have decided that it would be very appropriate to replace Minerva's statue with one of Clark the Palpitator. For this purpose they contribute one pound of tinfoil as a starter.

Seventeenth. To the library the class leaves a bound volume of all the copies of "Ballyhoo" published in the past year. Converse girls do not read the aforementioned obscene literature, but it is unanimously agreed that the majority of the faculty do.

Eighteenth. To them who need it most we leave our "pull" with Mr. Dale. Better be safe than sorry.

And ere we turn up our toes and heave our last breath,

We nominate for oblivion: all waffles made by our class during our Junior year; the extremely empty Senior section in chapel; Sarah Hudgens's hitch-hiking propensities; stocks; fire drills at 4 A.M.; and Miss Browning's choice collection of Senior silhouettes.

The Voice has spoken!

Dedication of The Other Y's

In the midst of the depression,
With nothing else to do,
In a moment of insanity,
We, the Class of '32—

To what has caused these circles
Underneath our eyes,
Do dedicate this volume
Of the Other Y's—

TO THE BANKS THAT HAVE FAILED

Student's Dictionary

A—Apples, so often a dessert in Converse.

B—Bag supper, that delightful part of Converse's Sunday nights.

C—Cuts, the favorite part of a college course.

D—Delirium, a state of mind brought on by exams.

E—Education, what we come here to get.

F—Failure, that grim spectre that stalks the campus at exam time.

G—Greenville, that much indulged in destination.

H—Hunger, our perpetual state.

I—Infirmary, which takes care of all the A. F. we can develop.

J—Joy, a state of happiness to be entirely forgotten on entering college.

K—Kitchenette, where those good Junior breakfasts are served.

L—Laboratory, where Biology and Chemistry students spend so many hours.

M—Money, that much-longed-for medium of exchange hidden usually in the second dresser drawer or under mattresses.

N—Nod, a form of amusement in many classes.

O—Occupied, a word no longer synonymous with bridge-playing.

P—Pull, a sublime assurance that the teacher likes you.

Q—Questions, things that the Faculty loves to fire at the students.

R—Rushing, that bane of existence for both upper classmen and freshmen at the beginning of the year.

S—Sunday morning, the time used for catching up on sleep.

T—Talk, synonymous with hot air.

U—Uptown, the haunt of every college girl between the hours of two and six.

V—Vanish, the term used to explain the mysterious disappearance of shoes, clothes, hats, money, etc.

W—Wofford, the inhabitation of the attractive other sex.

X—A mathematical term about which little is known but much written.

Y—Yearning, a vague, uneasy feeling felt by homesick girls.

Z—Zero, the usual mark found at the top of a returned test paper.

Why Professors Go Dippy

(By Courtesy of the Faculty)

Wolsey saved his life by dying on the way from York to London.

Tennyson wrote a poem called "Grave's Energy."

The plural of spouse is spice.

Queen Elizabeth rode a white horse from Kenilworth through Coventry with nothing on, and Sir Walter Raleigh offered her his coat.

The Pyramids are a range of mountains between France and Spain.

The circle is a line which meets its other end without ending.

Wind is air in a hurry.

Gender shows whether a man is masculine, feminine, or neuter.

Gravitation is that which if there were none we should fly away.

A vacuum is a large empty space where the Pope loves.

SOUND managerial policies and long, successful experience have provided us with sufficient equipment, adequate personnel, and ample resources to render dependable service as artists and makers of fine printing plates. That you will be secure from chance, is our first promise.

Definition of a Kiss

(A Clipping)

A thing of no use to anyone, but prized by two.

That which you cannot give without taking and cannot take without giving.

The flag of truce in the petty wars of courtship and marriage.

The acme of agony to a bashful man.

Nothing divided by two.

Not enough for one, just enough for two, too much for three.

The only really agreeable two-faced action in the world.

Everybody's acting edition of Romeo and Juliet.

What the child receives free, the young man steals, and the old man buys.

That in which two heads are better than one.

What ever trouble Adam had,
No man in days of yore
Could say, when Adam told a joke:
"I've heard that one before."
